MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Administration
Deputy Director for Intelligence
Deputy Director for Operations
Deputy Director for Science and Technology
Administrative Officer, DCI

FROM: Executive Director

SUBJECT: The 1984 CIA Program [redacted]

25X1

REFERENCE: 1984 Budget Call

1. As we set out to develop the CIA program for 1984, we have a clearer picture of where the community is headed -- with budget guidance to match -- than has ever before been the case. At my request, the DDI has prepared a list of intelligence shortfalls against substantive targets. This list is to be used as a primary guide in the preparation of new initiatives. It is being sent to you under separate cover along with the DCI Goals and Objectives 1984-1990. I commend these documents to your attention. [redacted]

2. Overall, I wish to emphasize the importance of developing innovative technical and operational solutions to the intelligence problems that face us. Creative planning and application of appropriate technology should allow us to make significant progress in improving our existing collection activities and developing new ones, [redacted]

[redacted] able to meet the challenges of the decade, in providing equipment needed to support [redacted] operations, and in improving the integration and analysis of intelligence data. Through the acquisition and training of additional capable personnel, we should strive for further improvement in the quality of analysis, rebuilding of our capabilities, [redacted] effective execution of our technical activities, and quality support to Agency operations. 3. We are faced with many intelligence challenges which are deserving of attention. There are, however, certain topics, both substantive and programmatic, that I want to ensure are covered in our program:
